descent road to legend the delve. descent road to legend delve review

If you have Descent and enjoy playing the game then getting "The Delve" is a no-brainer! It provides countless replay value that you can play co-op (which is fantastic) and it expands even more with the amount of physical expansions you have.. I love Descent 2 and the Road to Legends App. However, after I have played the Delve for three times with just the base game and trolfens, everything keeps repeating. There is way, way too little variety in delve levels for a 5 bucks dlc (also, less than in a free campaign). However, since I am a fan of the whole app and board game, I cannot bring myself to vote down here :). Just informing you guys.. As much as I enjoyed the base game, The Delve just does not seem to be that fun. It's just hack'n/slash without any decision making, no story, there is even no final boss fight or such! We finished the final quest and were like "wait. did we just win? really?" Grab a box of Shadows of Nerekhall and play the associated campaign, it's way better. (if you already finished the two free to play campaigns).. More Descent is always better.. Contains fun, short adventures. Really enjoy playing it with friends, especially when we don't have enough time to play a campaign.. Endless* replay for Descent: Road to legend. * You may get sick of the premise of rushing to portal, rinse, repeat, boss battle. The mode is pretty randomly generated, though, new scenarios each time. Parts are random anyways. It is always the same portal hopping quest, boss battle at scenario 3 and 6.

You need this relatively cheap DLC, to get the most bang for you buck purchasing physical expansions. The big box expansions unlock more phases for this mode. I am pretty sure they use the tiles too. Small box unlock less. Pretty sure the H&M packs don't unlock any scenarios for this mode. Might be fun to have more heroes and monster groups though, that's kind of the point.
